REGISTER AND RECORDER

CONSTANTINE FIX, March 23, 1872

Editors Morning Herald—You will please announce that J. MCCREE W. SHAW will be a candidate for renomination for the office of Register and Recorder at the ensuing Republican primary election.

MR. SHAW was a private in the army of the Union while there, gave up his own life at the battle of Gettysburg. He is competent, prompt and obliging, and has given satisfaction to the public in his present office. Thirty days he was disabled in the service of our country, being well qualified for the position and having the confidence of the business public and common citizens, as an officer, there is no doubt. Nomination will be made at the primary election.

VENANGO COUNTY.

REGISTER AND RECORDER

OIL CITY, March 21, 1872

Editors Herald—Please announce the name of Captain JOHN P. BARR as a candidate for Register and Recorder, subject to the usages of the Republican party at the primary election.

CAPTAIN BARR enlisted as a private in the Fourth Pennsylvania Cavalry in 1861, and remained in the service until the end of the war, during which time he was twice wounded, and brought off the field of battle a cripple. He is a gentleman, and obliging in his manner, prompt in his business dealings, and is the man you can rely on to do your duty, and in every respect qualified for the office.

MANY REPUBLICANS

THE PALSAM OF THE SPIRIT

I work in a humble manner,
For barely five dollars a week,
While the cash for the firm is an elder,
All bound, but my soul is free.

He sings the rumous rating Gospel
Into a rich family pillow,
Says grace both before and after,
And is famed for his excellent prayers.

He wears his benevolent graces
On a nose that an honor to know
And his sisters of drab are a credit
To his firm—which is Grinder & Co.

He's subscriber for missions a dozen,
And is orator in annual sleep
As chairman of something for saving
The loss of humanity's sheep.

I trudge at the same insome needle
From dawn till the twilight sing by Hard by, dull and speakably aching,
For fifty poor pennies a day.

I see no thing coming that's lighter
Than the twilight shall bring by despair,
And my two little pieces of mutter
For very to gether. You see fair!

And one must be dressed like a Christian,
Though I'm getting Christianly pay—
And how can I manage, good Elder,
On four of your silver a day.

Oh, well if the downward I'm going,
As I by we women can go,
We stay from the path of my moral
Amount to of Grinder & Co.

Yet so shy I do not be happy
Looks out with a pitiful eye
And seems to the pitiless world
Why we, the immortal must cry.

A scene to be wept is before me,
An animate life in the street—
Of drinking, and beating, and curses,
And darkness, and temptest of sleet.

Who knows but my earliest tears
Of dreams as and painful sighs
May go to the strange you're building
To shelter the lost of your sleep.

Oh, Elder! phi an'thropic model!
How much in excess would I cost,
Instead of hunting the sheep in their straying
To keep them from sheet being lost!

Chicago Post

The Result at Cincinnati.

From the Christian Union by Henry Ward Beecher

We have defended the Republican party, not by denying that there were evils in the administration, but by saying that they were largely vicious elements which had been long fixed in our political methods, that many of them had been cured, that things were on the way toward amendment, and that still others could be reached by the pressure of public sentiment, acting within the present Republican organization. We have said that such vast interests had, on the whole, never been better managed, that the departments of Government transacted more business, with less relative loss and friction, than in any administration that for a long time had preceded Grant's, that there was honest vigilance, an honest endeavor to render the collecting and disbursement of funds efficient, inexpensive, and safe, that frauds have not been hidden or compromised, but when discovered promptly punished; that there was never so little exhibition of "one-man power," and that in no previous administration had the clearly expressed will of the people ever had so direct and efficient an influence upon the Government. The great business interests of the country were never more prosperous. There was no general discontent or suffering among the laborers upon the soil or in shops. There were three parties of discontent—the Democratic party, including the South, the Sanatorial party, and the party of moral idealists, who sought to raise the whole tone of political morality, push out the small breed of managing politicians and bring in the era of a statesmen. The call from Missouri did not promise any important results until this appeal of the party of moral ideas for a higher life in the Government was added to it. That is always a taking cry. Good men are always sighing for the millennium. The ideas of carrying on a government by high moral principles, and by men of the New Jerusalem stamp, is irresistibly fascinating. Men of aspiration, ardent optimists, pious idealists, recluse and scholarly men who don't know why men cannot behave themselves as easily as books do on a shelf, all glowed with a secret satisfaction, that at length the best spirits of the Republic were to gather themselves in Cincinnati, and lift the country to a finer plane of virtue, propound principles worthy of the days of the fathers, and set forth issues that would separate between the wheat and the chaff. There rose over the horizon an ideal of political purity which kindled the hopes of thousands. This was not to be a Convention of politicians, but of sober citizens—wise men, who cared more for their country than for their own ambitions.

Well, what has happened? Never, since the days when Conventions were called, has there been, in any party, a Convention that more deserved to be called a Politicians' Convention.

There were gathered in Cincinnati, probably, as many men of distinguished excellence and of political and economic wisdom, as ever met together on this continent. There can be no doubt of the sincerity of their purpose, and of their high moral aim. But these were precisely the men that did not make themselves felt. The politicians had used them to gather an imposing Convention, and then they were allowed no more influence in it than if they had been pigmies. Those wise men were mere bubbles, that rose, swelled, reflected the iridescent hues of imaginary virtue, burst, and passed away! The politicians ruled. The real, old, shrewd, wire-pulling, cunning politicians, trained in a hundred campaigns, threw their net, their fine and silken net, and swept the whole swarm of bright fish that had come there to lay their spawn for unnumbered generations, and who found themselves caught, and sold in the market!

The platform is but a Shorter Catechism to the old Republican Confession of Faith. The only two points of difference—universal amnesty and civil service reform—though not in earlier platforms, have been General Grant's special endeavors, and have been hindered and defeated by the indifference or coldness of some of the very men who rejoiced in this Convention.

The convention call stood on four corner stones, one of which, and a bright and shining stone it was, was free trade. The Northwest wanted it. The Southwest wanted it. The South wanted it. The men that originated the movement wanted it. The Missouri bugle summoned the Revenue Reformers to Cincinnati to manufacture a new national policy. What has this Free Trade Convention done? Why, it recognizes such honest diversities of opinion on the tariff question, that the convention don't like to meddle with it, and refers it back to the people in their Congressional districts. It seems for the first time in Convention to have dawned on Carl Schurz and Gratz Brown that there was a division of opinion on the subject. They now, for the first time, look down and see the whirling eddies of contrary opinion on the tariff question, and deem it best not to meddle with it. And yet, this was the very cry which raised the people to form a convention! This was the lure which brought ten thousands of men by thousands of miles—to be told to go home again and let the people settle the matter! Why not refer all other questions in the platform back to the people? What use of platform conventions at all, if the people are all sufficient?

The old politicians, trained to manipulating, idolizing men, but compelled them to exhibit their antics to the world. Gratz Brown, the fiery Phaeton, was sent home with Horace Greeley on his saddle—the extremest out of Pilgrims Progress. A Hercules Greeley, in which the fates Henry Clay have knelt! Half a dozen Presidential aspirants, all bowing and scraping for the lovely form of Greeley!

The tariff Corinthians all went the Goliahs, the Wilkinsons, the Bowles, the Atkinsons, to found a party for Free Trade. They have come home again with Horace Greeley on their banners, as the candidate for the Presidency, and a platform that ignores the whole question of Tariff and Free Trade!

This is the Convention that was to get rid of political rules—to put public affairs upon a higher level—to purge out all chicanery, and to lead on the nation to a higher style of political statesmanship!

We need not express our high consideration of Mr. Greeley, personally, nor deny that, as belonging to the profession of journalists, we take a degree of pleasure in having one confessedly at the head of the profession selected for the highest national honor.

As editor of the Tribune we thoroughly believe in Mr. Greeley, and if these United States were not a thirty-seven paged Tribune to be edited, we should certainly vote the Greeley ticket. But, as commanding an army and conducting a government have been found to be very different operations, so it may be presumed that a man may be a kind editor without being a wise and skillful administrator.

But any discussion of fitness of candidates, and of the probable effect of the nomination, should not be made, and better be deferred till the smoke clears up a little.

How Napoleon Looked.

A curious controversy has been started, or revived, lately, respecting the appearance of the first Napoleon. It seems that the eccentric octagenarian Michelet having for many years devoted himself to the task of vivisecting the great man quant au moral, has now discovered that he was in truth a very plain and ordinary person au physique. He looked "wild and obscure, and a sort of sinister enigma" in his youth, but this was only "in the beautiful drunk," in middle age, "he was without eyelashes or eyebrows, and with a small quantity of hair of an uncertain brown, which in his youth seemed black; in consequence of a free use of pomade, his eyes were gray, like a pane of glass which reflects nothing; in short, an insignificant and obscure impression of what appears phantasmagorical." All this critics—as well, no doubt, as the hero-worship which is meant to counteract—is founded, of course, on portraits and statues, and the question as to their exactness and authenticity will no doubt be decided by another thunderbolt like Michelet in second sense with his preconceived view. We have heard it said that the well-known print representing the Empress as challenged by an innocent young conscript on guard, offered as good a likeness as any, to the painter was not taken from life. However, having been brought up all our lives in the persuasion that the Emperor possessed extremely fine features, we cannot be dissuaded from it except by stronger arguments than those which M. Michelet evolves out of his own idiosyncrasy, and esteem the contrary assertion as heretical as to deny the beauty of Antinous or Apollo.

One observation, at all events, is not without its weight in the controversy, if such it can be called. He came of an enormously handsome family. His father, Carlo Buonaparte, the lawyer, had, when young, very well-formed features, though somewhat too delicate in expression for the parent of a mighty conqueror. This is the judgment to be formed from his likeness in the library at Ajaccio, but he died in middle life. The Emperor's mother was celebrated for the charms of her girlhood, and no less so for her maturer beauty in after life. Thus much even M. Michelet admits; but proceeds after his fashion to turn his own portrait into a caricature. She is "indescribably tragic and mysterious. The mouth is contemptuous, vindictive, full of the bitter honey which is only to be found in Corsica. The large and fixed eyes are, nevertheless, enigmatic. If they look, it is interiorly at their own dream of passion." We may be essentially unpoetical, but our own inferences from the well known portraits of Mme. Mere's very handsome face are certainly as different as possible from M. Michelet's. We cannot discover in her—either au physique or au moral—any sign of a Lady Macbeth or a Lucrezia Borgia, or a sphinx. Clever she undoubtedly was, but her imperial son, while trusting her on the throne with credit and respect, seems to have kept her effectually under, and to have submitted no more to maternal than to conjugal dictation. Her intrigues—if she did intrigue—seems to have been chiefly confined to managing the household disputes and intrigues of her numerous progeny, and to taking good care of the money-box. Those who ascribe to her any higher genius than this seem to us to be misled by the supposed necessity of upholding the ancient dogma—pretty well demolished by Mr. Francis Galton—that great men derive the essential part of their character from their mothers. Lucien—considered, we believe, more like Napoleon than any of his brothers—was a handsome man. So was Jerome, though of an inferior type. So is the present Prince Napoleon, whose resemblance to his uncle has been so often remarked on. Also, his sisters were above the average of beauty, one, Pauline, though of petite description, possessed charms both of face and figure of no common order, which, as all the world knows, have become widely celebrated through her generous enthusiasm for it.

It is also a remark, not indeed decisive of the question of beauty, but bearing on it very nearly, that the traditional type of the first Napoleon has a tendency to reappear so frequently among us, as pertaining to individuals of various classes who have certainly no noticeable connection or analogy with him. Some research of phrenologists has maintained the paradox that nature is apt to scatter, at fairly certain number of human countenances, though very large, wherewith to endow mortals, and that when her repository is exhausted she has no choice but to repeat herself, with such slight differences only as are absolutely necessary to preserve individuality. Every one must have remarked the number of persons resembling Napoleon, as we conceive him, inheriting not before the type of those marked features, with more or less of the expression, who were to be formerly met with in society, and probably are so still, only the likeness is becoming more and more traditional. Not to mention the illustrious Widecombe, who earned a theatrical livelihood for many years by simply trading on that likeness, memory will furnish most of us with many more. There is a distinguished retired chief of the House of Commons—an eminent tactician who, like his prototype, has commanded his legions many times to victory,—in whose keen look and resolute brow there is, however, a moiety of mild humanity. One great Napoleon, the youngest of the three soldier brothers, was extremely like Napoleon in outline of feature, and in expression. And we have known a provincial doctor who resembled the Emperor more than either of these. Now, it is scarcely superstitious to say that when a man thus reflects a face for reproduction by chance, it will be a fine one. Transferred from mythology to physiognomy, the proposition would amount to this—that in faces, particularly those made of with that lofty power, have a peculiar facility for attracting the imagination and occupying the memory, so that the observer has a natural tendency to look out for counterparts in the numbers he meets in ordinary intercourse.—Pall Mall Gazette

Gardening

I won't recommend to every man, especially in the autumn of his life, to take to gardening, if he has not already experienced its pleasures. Of all occupations in the world it is the one which best combines repose and activity. It is not idleness, it is not stagnation, and yet it is perfect quietude. Like all things mortal it has its failures and its disappointments, and there are some things hard to understand. But it is never without its rewards, and perhaps if there were nothing but successful cultivation, the anxiety to enjoy would be less. It is better for the occasional shadows that come over the scene. The discipline, too, is most salutary. It tries our patience, and it tries our fa

REPUBLICAN STATE CONVENTION

ELMIRA, N Y, May 15

The New York State Republican Convention was called to order at noon to-day by B Cornell. Henry R Pierson was chosen permanent President by acclamation, and made a speech returning thanks for the honor conferred, rehearsing the history of the Republican party When the name of U S Grant was reached, cheering by the Convention was continued for several minutes Vice Presidents were appointed from each judicial district

The Chair announced the Committee on Resolutions, with Judge Pierrepont as Chairman, also a committee to appoint delegates at large and alternates

The convention then took a recess

After the convention reassembled, Judge Pierrepont, from the Committee on Resolutions, reported a series of resolutions embodying the following principles

First—Protection to American citizens, without regard to race or color

Second—Constitutional amendments to remain inviolate

Third—The public debt to be paid in coin

Fourth—No oppressive taxation to pay the public debt

Fifth—A reforming of the civil service and repealing of the income tax and all revenue taxes except on tobacco and liquors

Sixth—A revenue tariff

Seventh—Reconciliation of harmony in the reconstructed states

Eighth—A preservation of peace with honor to the United States with foreign nations

Ninth—That respect for soldiers and sailors of the late war require the principles of the Republican party to be maintained

Tenth—That the surrender of the Republican party at this time will be a surrender of the principles which saved the nation from dismemberment

Eleventh—That the policy of universal amnesty is a despotism, they asserting disfranchised from voting on holding property.

Twelfth—That politicians of the seceded States have not changed the principles but only the parties

Thirteenth—That all who have been elected from the Republican party are invited to reunite with it

Fourteenth—Recites the ben fits arising from President Grant's administration

Fifteenth—That it would be exceedingly unwise to change our aims, tried at least; Chief Magistrate to be one untried and uncertain, and we unanimously advise the renomination of General Grant for next President of the United States

General Martindale addressed the convention in favor of the resolutions, reciting the late history of the country, and particularly that of the present administration, and criticising the action of those seeking to break up the Republican party

The resolutions were then unanimously adopted

The Chairman of each delegation then announced delegates to the Philadelphia convention, which matters The following were appointed at large Geo Smith at-at, Andrew D White William Orton alternate, William Barnes, James N Matthews, alternate Lewis Clark W J Butler alternate, J W Booths B Cutler, alternate, Gen J C Robinson Gen Stephen Moffat alternate John A Griswold.

The report was adopted, and upon motion then adjourned sine die amid enthusiastic cheers

CONTRADICTION

It has been stated in the Cincinnati Enquirer that the Democratic Congress gave the President written assurance to Senator Trumbull's scheme and others, that the Democrats would support the Cincinnati nominee The Associated Press Agent is requested by the Washington Democratic members to contradict that statement, and to say that no assurance written or verbal, were given to the Senators or any one else to that effect

THE INTER OCEANIC CANAL

The President in reply to the delegation from Congress who are urgent the construction of the inter oceanic canal connecting the Mississippi with the Atlantic, to-day, said he saw a map of the route yesterday and it took a long eminently practical, and he thought very important in view of the fact that the present commercial routes are inadequate to the growing needs of commerce, and were it not for the lateness of the present session, he would make it the subject of special communication to Congress but he suggested that perhaps the better way would be first to interest friends of the measures in Congress in the work and obtain the introduction and reference of a bill as preliminary to subsequent action by the Executive He did not know whether Congress would be prepared to guarantee the bonds of the company or would prefer to give a direct subsidy in public lands He had not heard any express on of opinion among members, but they would see its importance, and he thought that by a proper presentation of the case before the two Houses there would be a strong disposition manifested to carry the enterprise through He regarded it as of great national importance and deserving of national aid

SCHENCK'S LIBRARY CORRESPONDENCE

The correspondence on the Washington Treaty, communicated to the Senate with the President's message accompanying was published this morning The correspondence is voluminous, and includes a draft of the articles for the supplement to the treaty prepared by Granville Leveson Gower, and rejected by Minister Schenck in the 10th inst, for approval by the United States Government The following is Granville's proposition as telegraphed by Minister Schenck

Whereas, The Government of Her Britanic Majesty has contended in a recent correspondent with Government of the United States as follows, namely that such indirect claims as those for national losses, stated in the cases presented on the part of the Government of the United States to the tribunal of arbitrators at Geneva, and to have been sustained by loss in transfer of the American commercial marine to the British flag, the enhanced payments and insurance in prolonging the war, and an addition of a large sum to the cost of the war and suppression of the rebellion, firstly were not included in the Treaty of Washington, and further, and secondly, should not be admitted by any particular vessels alleged to have been enabled to commit such depredations upon shipping of a belligerent, by reason of such want of diligence and performance of the mutual obligations as that which is imported by the United States to Great Britain, and,

Whereas, The Government of Great Britain has also declared the principle involved in the second of the contentions, hereinbefore set forth, will guide their conduct in future,

Whereas, the President of the United States, while adhering to his contention that the said claims were included in the treaty, adopts for the future the principle contained in the second of said contentions, so far as to declare that it will hereafter guide the conduct of the Government of the United States, and the two countries are therefore agreed in this respect, and in consideration thereof the President of the United States, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate thereof, concedes that he will make no claim on the part of the United States in respect to the indirect losses, as aforesaid, before the tribunal of arbitration at Geneva (Signed) SCHENCK

TRIBUNE ON THE CAPITULATION

The Tribune this morning, in an article headed 'The terms of surrender,' says We publish this morning details of the capitulation upon which the President asks the approval of the Senate It is time, when he tells us Thiers said of the Emperor Napoleon, that there are no half left to commit, every step of this negotiation having been misunderstood by both sides The President and Secretary of State have taken the ludicrous resolution of not rendering themselves responsible for any more blunders They have therefore, reversed the natural and logical course of all our diplomatic procedure, and asked an expression in advance as to what the Senate will do when the supplementary treaty shall come before it, instead of sending the treaty to the Senate for ratification

The Herald says This is, after all, a rather bungling way of managing great international affairs The whole question might just as well have been left out of the treaty and payment have been made for direct losses, caused by the Alabama and other privateers, without any regard for prospective rules regarding the neutral duties, and will remain just where it stood before If the supplemental proposition be adopted, it will be a great relief to the country when this palaver shall be ended and the Alabama claims be either settled or held in abeyance until a more convenient opportunity

ALMOST A CALAMITY

A special from Port Jervis states that the express car on yesterday morning's Pacific express train west, on the Erie road, filled with delegates to the Elmira Convention, burned off the axle, causing the wheel rip up the road for a distance of a mile, while running along the edge of a precipice one hundred feet high at a fearful rate of speed. Nothing saved the car from pitching down the embankment but the fact of its being on a six wheeled truck and all the cars securely chained together Great indignation was expressed among the passenger that the trains should have been so carelessly packed as to risk such a second possibility of a run of only eighty miles

DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVENTION

ROCHESTER May 15

The Democratic State Convention was called to order by Samuel J Tilden in a short speech

Thomas Kinsellar was appointed temporary Chairman He made a short speech, in which he said he knew he was not chosen for intellectual considerations, but because he was one of the earliest and most earnest advocates of a reunion of all the liberal elements

A committee of two from each Judicial district is appointed, to which all resolutions and platforms will be referred without debate

The committees on resolutions and contested seats were appointed, and the convention adjourned till 3 o'clock

On reassembling, the Committee on Permanent Organization reported the name of Mr Kinsellar for permanent President of the Convention

Mr Kinsellar, on taking the chair permanently, remarked that it seemed that the young men party were coming to the front, and he hoped that they would keep the party as unsullied as had those great men who preceded them

The Committee on Contested Seats reported in favor of Judge Smith of New York The report made by Judge Hoffman, the delegation had been duly organized, and directly to the Convention, in accordance with the rules adopted last year Report adopted

Much discussion then ensued on a resolution offered by Dayton, to the effect that a committee be appointed to select delegates to Baltimore

Mr Fenton insisted that the delegates should be appointed by the Congressional district delegations, and moved a substitute to that effect, which after discussion was lost—ayes 64—nays 70—the majority preferring the friends of the unit system

Mr Gilbert N Potter, from the Committee on Resolutions made a report He said the committee had given the subject almost careful and thorough consideration The results were as follows

The Democratic party of the State of New York assembled in regular convention to select delegates to the National Convention, to be held at Baltimore to nominate candidates for President and Vice President, declare and resolve that we recognize the changes in the nature and constitution of the government which have taken place, and without referring to questions of the past are ready now to cooperate with those, whatever their previous party affiliations, who favor limited and localized governments, who seek to restrain the excesses by Congress of absolute and general powers and to prevent its entering on private legislation, to restrain the growth of vast corporations, and to work permanent civil service reform

Resolved, That the recent declaration of political principles by the Cincinnati convention is evidence of the progress of public opinion towards sound and wholesome views of government, that we believe all patriotic citizens may unite on that platform for the purpose of restoring an honest administration of national affairs enforcing the obligations of the Constitution, and our delegates to Baltimore are instructed to use the utmost best influence to secure the triumph of these principles and the selection of any candidate representing them who shall meet the approval of the Democracy at the assembling of the National Convention

The following gentlemen were appointed as committee to select delegates to the Baltimore Convention James C Spencer, Oliver Charbeck Robert Gerstle, R Bot Fancy, Joe B Cleary, Jno H Cooley, Ruth Butler E M Holmbeck, O A Dwiet, Jno B. Kerr, Dedrick Miller Jr, W H Bowman, N B Parsons and C F Bissell

HOUSE

WASHINGTON, May 15.

Bills from the Judiciary Committee were reported and passed as follows

To establish a uniform time for Presidential elections

The House bill providing for stenographers for United States Circuit Courts.

The House then took up and disposed of the Senate amendments to the military academy appropriation bill, and the Conference Committee was ordered on disagreeing votes

The Senate amendment to the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill, which is to continue the missions to Central American States, was taken up, and after some discussion was rejected Yeas, 89, nays, 91

Mr Butler, of Massachusetts, offered as a question of privilege, a resolution for final adjournment on the 29th of May till the last Wednesday in November

At the suggestion of Mr Dawes he withdrew it, and gave notice that he would offer it to-morrow

The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the tariff and tax bill

Mr Dawes withdrew his substitution for the second section

The committee then passed to the next section

The second section as it now stands is as follows 'To reduce existing duties on the following articles 10 per cent. on all iron and all manufactures of iron, all metals not herein otherwise provided for, and all manufactures of metal except watches and jewelry and other articles of ornament all printing paper, all manufactures of India rubber, gutta percha, or strain and oil cloths of all descriptions, provided that the duty on umbrellas, etc, shall not be less than on goods of the same material and quality as the covering thereof, all steel and manufactures of steel, wire-rope and wire-strand made of iron wire and of steel wire are to pay the same duty as on iron and steel wire

An additional section was inserted after section 2 declaring that the provisions of section 6 of the tariff act of 1865, shall not apply to articles mentioned in the act of March 2 1867, to provide revenue from imported wool

Mr Lynch moved to strike out the House fixing the duty on boards, planks, staves, &c, at 10 per cent, and to substitute for it a clause taxing sawed boards, planks and other lumber of pine, hemlock, whitewood, sycamore and basswood $1 00 per 1 000 feet, and when planed or flutished, $1 00 additional, and when planed on one side and tongued and grooved, $2 00 additional, and when planed on two sides and tongued and grooved, $2 50 additional

After a long discussion, the question of lumber was decided by the adoption of the proposition offered by Mr Potter reducing existing duties on lumber and manufactures of lumber ten per cent

Mr Banks moved to amend the item taxing coal tar 14 cents per pound, by making the tax 90 per cent of existing duties Agreed to

The Committee then rose, and Mr Garfield made the Conference report on the currency bill The paragraph in regard to the tax clause, which was the chief point of disagreement, is modified so that the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized and directed to pay to lawful owners their legal representatives, the value of a cotton seized after the 30th of June, 1865 by agents of the Government, unlawfully and in violation of their instruction The proceeds, without interest, are to be actually paid into the Treasury, the receipt thereof to be in full satisfaction of all such claims, and not to apply to any claims now pending before the Court of Claims, or to any claim not filed in the Treasury Department within six months after the passing of this act

A question was raised in the House as to the right of one of the conferees—Senator Sherman—to state in the report why he did not assent to it, and under decision of the Chair, it was treated as a mere bulletin, and the conference report was directed to be received in the Journal of the House assented by three of the House conferees and by two of the Senate conferees Report agreed to

The House took a recess till 7 30 p m, the evening session to be for business of the Judiciary Committee

SENATE

Mr Wilson, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported the bill to provide civilian for soldiers and sailors disabled during the late war

Mr Trumbull, from the Judiciary Committee, reported the bill authorizing legal claimants for the value of captured or abandoned property to bring suits in the Court of Claims within six months

The report of the Committee of Conference on the deficiency bill was taken up and discussed till the expiration of the morning hour, when the unfinished business of the habeas corpus suspension bill was laid aside, and the bill to confirm the action of the Common Council of Washington, designating a post route for the Baltimore & Potomac Railroad, was taken up but laid aside, and the Senate resumed the consideration of the Conference report on deficiency, which, after debate, was agreed to by a vote of 35 to 34

Mr Trumbull from the Committee on Judiciary, reported, without amendment, the House bill supplemental to the appointment act of the 21st of February, 1872

Also, without amendment the bill conferring the United States Courts of Arkansas

Also, unfavorably on bills to establish the District of Kentucky

Mr Wright introduced a bill authorizing the erection of a Marine Hospital at Stony City

The Baltimore & Potomac Railroad bill was again taken up and debated till recess

There will be a special meeting of the Common Council this (Thursday) afternoon, at 3 o'clock p m

HENRY C BLOSS, President

A Few Notes Abroad.

Mr Geo W Brons, who returned home from his foreign tour a few days ago, took passage on the Atlantic, of the White Star line, being eleven days out, from Liverpool The vessel had fifty six cabin and nine hundred and eighty steerage passengers Mr Brons spent three months in London, sight seeing, and principally devoted his time on the continent between Berlin and Paris He found the English language everywhere spoken, and in walking up Champs Elysees, in Paris, he found three out of five of the passers by speaking English The hotels abroad are not superior to ours, either in price or accommodations No expense is spared by the authorities to make Paris beautiful to the eye, and attractive to strangers London has a dull grandeur, a solid obscurity about it in the winter time

The fogs are so thick that the gas often has to be lighted at noon for the streets and houses The railroad trains abroad make better time and are more punctual than ours, as a general thing The construction of cars is different, the doors opening at the side, and the car divided into compartments There is no jerking or jolting in starting a train The railroad stations are models of neatness and have a picturesque effect generally of brick they are surrounded with grass plots planted with flowers, and the structure covered with vines The country is free from fences, saving a great waste of land, the division lines being marked with white, upright stones The roads in the country are macadamized in France Germany and England, and roads besides the artificial pavement in Central Park The farms are in the highest state of cultivation, not a stump or boulder to be seen

The London Times publishes less telegraphic news than the Titusville HERALD Its force is in its editorials, shaping public opinion, and are as brilliant as Macaulay's essays

Mr Brons goes with our London correspondent, Mr A C Myers, that there is a chance for some live man from the oil regions to make a fortune in introducing the use of refined petroleum as an illuminator In France and England, except in large hotels, and also to a great extent in Germany, candles are used, which is a great bother and a great deal more expensive than burning oil would be

A PROFESSIONAL BASE BALL NINE—For some time past there has been a desire manifested to organize a professional base ball club in this city the idea is a good one This is now the game as the nations game, and it has been steadily gaining ground for the past three seasons Other towns of the size of our own, maintain their professional clubs, why should we not do the same? Apart from any other consideration, anything which has a tendency to induce the following of athletic sports is a matter of national importance It is a fact patent to all observers that whatever becomes a profession flourishes while other things are more apt to go to the wall With this view of the matter before us it is to be hoped that our citizen will respond to any call which may be made upon them to further this end

The expense of maintaining a professional nine would not be heavy We have in this citizen men who would constitute a club that would do honor to Titusville, in fact, we are informed that in further use of this end, members of the Seneca Club of Oil City have already had an interview with a number of gentlemen here, though nothing has yet been definitely decided in the matter

Prominent among the gentlemen who have visited our city or who might be made members of a professional nine, we would mention J H Forman, late of the Kokionga Club of Fort Wayne, A Hall, catcher, Queen, short stop, Dickey and H B Van Veleor—all either past or present members of the Senecas This club have, for the last three years, been the champions of Western Pennsylvania, and have a record of which they have no reason to be ashamed

It is a matter of public importance that our city take a prominent position in all manly and athletic sports We have our driving park, and if we are debarred from some other branch of our national pastimes, let us at least avail ourselves of those which are within our reach

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN—Last night J W Carner and Company gave this old but favorite play Carner himself appeared in two characters, Phineas Fletcher and Gumption Cute As his acting is always fine, it is only necessary to say that, in the above roles, he did both full justice

Gregston was good in the different characters he assumed

Miss Louisa Peterson, Miss Eva Brent' Miss Warren and little Nellie McGee, each did more than ordinarily well

To troupe go from here to Franklin, Sharon NewCastle and Youngstown We hope and expect they will receive in each of those places the patronage they deserve

A SPECIAL MEETING of the Titusville Oil Exchange will be held this (Thursday) evening at half past seven o'clock P H GARFIELD, President, D W LOCKART, Secretary

Convention of Refiners of the United States.

The Refiners' Convention met at eleven o'clock yesterday morning, in the room recently occupied by the Oil Exchange, Parshall House

Mr A P Barnett was appointed President and Mr N W Stevens, of Pittsburgh, Secretary

On motion a committee was appointed by the Chair to enroll the names of the delegates from each locality and hand them to the Secretary

The Secretary read the following invitation from the Titusville Oil Exchange

TITUSVILLE OIL EXCHANGE,
TITUSVILLE, PA, May 15, 72

The delegates to the Refiners' Convention are cordially offered the hospitalities of the Titusville Oil Exchange, and are invited to make free use of the rooms during their stay in this city

M E BASSETT, Vice President.

On motion the invitation was accepted and a vote of thanks tendered the Exchange

The Secretary read the following minutes of last meeting

Minutes of a meeting of petroleum refiners, held in Titusville, Friday, May 10, 1872, Mr Wm Carson President, W C Warner Secretary

Mr Waring being called upon stated the object of the meeting, it being the result or continuance of a meeting lately held in Pittsburgh, to which the refiners of the country had been generally invited, to ascertain if a union for mutual protection and advantage was desirable and possible

The minutes of the Pittsburgh meeting were placed at the disposal of this meeting Moved that they be read

The President first called upon the Creek refiners for an expression of their views on the general desirability of a plan for union among refiners

Messrs Bennett and Porter expressed themselves willing to unite with any arrangement on a fair and equitable basis to all parties

The minutes of the Pittsburg meeting were read by the Secretary, followed by remarks and questions by Messrs Thumm, man, Bennett and others, and answered by Mr Taylor, who explained the plan of leasing, bonding, etc, as generally agreed upon in the Pittsburgh meeting

Mr Rockefeller moved that an informal vote be taken on the question, if it be the judgement of the meeting to further pursue the consideration of this matter

After discussion, the motion was withdrawn

Moved and carried that we adjourn until 8 o'clock in the evening

EVENING SESSION—Met again at 8 o'clock

Reading of the minutes of the former meeting on motion, dispensed with

Mr Waring moved to take up the Pittsburgh resolutions seriatim Carried

Resolutions were then read

Mr Byers made inquiry, to which Mr Taylor replied explaining the whole matter

Mr Waring withdrew his motion, and recommended a general description on each proposition of the resolutions

Remarks by Byers, Warden and others

After much discussion and many explanations, Mr Bennett moved that the President of the meeting telegraph to the Refiners' Association of New York, Boston, and other points that a Convention of the refiners of the United States will be held, and inviting them to be present Wednesday, May 15 h, was named as the day, and Titusville the place

Mr Taylor moved that the Creek refiners be requested to present their views at the next meeting, or convention

On motion, adjourned to Wednesday, May 15th, at 10 o'clock a m

W C WARNER, Secretary

On motion the minutes as read were accepted

The Secretary read the report of the Committee on delegates as follows

LIST OF DELEGATES

OIL CITY—W M Justi, C F Thumm, J J Vandergrift John Pitcairn, Jun

On motion, the report was adopted with an amendment to enroll the names of other delegates arriving

The following committee on order of business was then appointed by the Chair

COMMITTEE ON ORDER OF BUSINESS

J L Stewart, Philadelphia, R S Waring, Pittsburgh, C M Carner, Boston, Charles Pratt, New York, J Pitcairn, jun, T McGowan, Creek, H M Flagler, Cleveland

The Convention then adjourned till 2 p m

AFTERNOON SESSION

Minutes of morning meeting were read by the Secretary

Mr Stewart of Philadelphia, Chairman, of the Committee on order of business, read the following report

Is it advisable to form a national joint stock refining corporation?

Is it practicable to form a national joint stock refining corporation?

Can any other plan than that of a joint stock corporation be devised to secure the benefits sought by the refining interests?

On motion report was received

Question in order on first proposition, Is it desirable to form a joint stock refining corporation?

Mr Allen moved that the second proposition be discussed before the first, Is it practicable to form a joint stock refining corporation? Carried

After a protracted pause, Mr Allen said the committee should be the parties to lead the discussion

Mr Drew said, I am not a member of that committee, but I will say this is a matter of great importance to us, to the State of Pennsylvania, and to the whole country We have a refining interest in the United States worth five or six millions of dollars The question is, how can we render it remunerative? We do not exclusively wish to benefit ourselves, but look at it also from a national standpoint We have a very valuable production, confined to a limited area. The refining interest prepare the crude for the markets of the world This latter industry sprung into existence soon after striking the first well

Now we have more refining capacity than we require, how shall we make it remunerative? Since the Franco German war, an import duty has been placed, in Germany, on refined How shall we protect ourselves? Can we do it? and if so, what is the plan by which it can be effected? There has been a contest among manufacturers, to our mutual disadvantage This is the case with many other manufactures Lately the country has been moved to combine these various interests, which has been of great benefit Why cannot we also combine to benefit the producer, the refiner, and the consumer The report from the other side of the Atlantic is that they are willing to pay more for refined oil than they do now Shale, rape-seed, and other oils cannot harm us if we have a combination to protect our interests. I am a producer and refiner, also Europe pays the poorest price for crude that she can. Our country ought to have from five to ten millions of dollars more per annum than we are now receiving for refined oil We are killing the goose that lays the golden egg

We must devise some plan to benefit the producer as well as the refiner We are responsible as refiners for over-production, we have too many refineries to comply to for crude, and we run the price of refined down at seaboard, by begging our cousins on the other side to take oil at 23 cents Oil is cheap at 40 to 45 cents for export. We are jealous of one another, and run our business into the ground There has not been any money made for years in the business Why should this $6,000,000 rest dormant? We are all too hopeful, and run our refineries at a loss to day, looking for a better state of things to-morrow Badly located refineries are bound to run We are now compelled to do something to pay the producer as well as the refiner, and not throw away the valuable profits which we could otherwise make We must be liberal, fraternal, and look to the benefit of the whole. We say to-day we are running at a loss, and we go naturally to depress crude, but we can, by getting a better price for refined, give a better price for crude With regard to exporting crude, we should manufacture every barrel of oil produced in the country We have no designs upon the great producing interests of the country There must be no antagonism between the two great interests

Mr Pitcairn said There is no question in my mind that an association would be desirable, but the only question is in regard to the practicability of a joint stock company, because it would not be unanimous Anything, to be successful, must be unanimous The Creek, New York and Boston would, I am informed, object There may be a beneficial association organized, but we do not desire to open our identity

Mr Pratt, of New York, said he did not think it practicable to combine so large an interest, unless those who did not wish to go in could be bought up It each man could run his own business, the matter would be different

Mr McGowan moved that it is the sense of this meeting, that it is practicable to form a joint stock association for refining oil

Mr McKee moved that the present motion be laid on the table for the present

Mr McGowan withdraws his motion

Mr Allen said if one third of the refiners would buy out the other two thirds, the thing could be run a great deal more economically If there is an intelligent desire to do justice to everybody, this can be done

Mr Thumm said We are wrong in stating we have too much capacity I should like to find out how much capacity we have I should like to see all of us prosper, but I do not see why we should give away our property and lose our individuality by a joint stock company If there is any other way of benefiting us we would like to hear it

Mr John D Archbold said I am very willing to do anything which will be of benefit to the trade, in whatever is the best plan, I am willing to co-operate It there is anything better than a joint stock company I would like to hear what it is.

The President remarked that there is too much competition in selling. How are we to remedy this evil? Reduce your sellers Let the goods be placed for sale in the hands of one man Is it just that we should, year after year, sell our goods at a loss, reduce the price of refined, and bear down the crude market? If we are to take into account that one man is to be higher than another, we can never agree We have human nature to deal with, and if a joint stock company is objectionable, let us adopt some other plan I think we are responsible for the low price of oil, by ruinous competition Is it practicable to do away with the difficulty? We have submitted plan after plan, which resulted in nothing Let us now try and co-operate in something

Mr Allen said let us hunt up and see whether we have too much refining capacity We are prepared to go into any arrangement which will be satisfactory If any gentleman believes that there is a plan, let him submit it

Here followed a long pause

Mr Archbold wished to know how we are going to get at the sense of the convention if we don't submit the question to a vote

Mr Waring, of Pittsburgh, proposed that the proceedings of the meeting at Pittsburgh be read

Mr Walter said he did not think it desirable to submit them or get up a plan until we decided whether it was practicable and advisable

Mr J D Archbold moved to amend by adding the words, "or other co-operative association" Carried unanimously

Mr Allen moved to amend by striking out all after the word resolved, and substitute, is it practicable to form some co-operative association Lost

The original question as amended by Mr Archbold, was then put and carried

The Secretary read the third proposition

On motion the third proposition was tabled

Three separate plans were then submitted, and ordered to be printed

On motion of Mr Warner, Messrs J Pitcairn, M N Allen, and G B Easterly, were appointed a committee to draft a fourth plan, to be printed with the other three

The Convention then adjourned, to meet this morning at nine o'clock

The Late L P M Spencer.

OIL CITY, PA, May 14, 1872

Editors Morning Herald

In order to correct any misapprehension existing in the mind of the public regarding the lamentable death of Mr L P M. Spencer, late Cashier of the First National Bank of this city, permit me to say that he resigned the position, which took effect on the 10 h instant, on which day (Friday last) he left for his home, near Port and, Vermont, but intended stopping a few days in New York for the purpose of consulting a physician whom he had visited a short time since, and the only cause we can assign the rash act was depression consequent upon his distressing illness (neuralgia in the stomach), and, in justice to his memory, allow me to add my testimony to his worth as an efficient officer of the bank with which he has been connected for the last eight years, being one of the most competent tellers in the State, a courteous and accomplished gentleman, and of irreproachable integrity and whose death caused sadness and sorrow among his former associates and in this community which will not soon die away.

WILLIAM HASSON,
President First National Bank.

Petition.

To W B Roberts, Mayor, &c

We the undersigned citizens of Titusville, respectfully request your Honor to call a Public Meeting at the Oil Exchange on Thursday evening May 16, for the purpose of having an expression of the feeling of our community upon the late attempt of the Oil Creek & Allegheny River Railway Company, to obtain an injunction to prevent the Pennsylvania Petroleum Railroad Company from crossing their track in this city, and thereby continue the unjust monopoly which has so long oppressed our commercial interests

Shall We Have a Good Drive!

Editors Morning Herald

Your article in yesterday morning's paper, on the subject of good roads, is to the point and very timely This matter should be considered at once, and an effort made to put at least one road, leading from our city, in good order, or in a condition that would make a drive a pleasure instead of a racking, wrenching, tumbling misery This is frequently noticed by visitors and citizens, as a great drawback to our otherwise attractive city In order to open the subject, I propose that Mr Webster gives us his views through the column of the HERALD, as to the best road, and the most economical and substantial plan for placing the same in good condition

In the meant me would it not be well to start a subscript on paper in order to test the spirit of our citizens on this very important matter? KIRK

FINE BUILDING LOTS IN OIL CITY—The demand for building sites in Oil City, determined Messrs T B Porteous & P M Clark to open the land in the neighborhood of the race track, by building an inclined railway up the side of the hill Work on this was begun yesterday and will be pushed vigorously to completion. This will give an easy means of access to some of the finest locations for dwelling houses in the neighborhood of the city The view being exceedingly fine, what will the requirements for health in the shape of pure air, water and freedom from dirt are fully met

The track which was bought some time ago by Mr Clark, has been plotted into 1,000 lots of 35 by 140 feet each, which will soon be offered to the public

CRESCENT TUBE WORKS—The advertisement of this works will be found in another column They are now represented by Mr G B Mitchell, Agent, office No 4 Parshall House All kinds of wrought iron pipe, from one eighth of an inch to eight inches in diameter, including lap-welded tubing and casing for oil wells, are turned out in large quantities, and in quality second to none in the country

THE application made for an injunction, on behalf of the O C & A R R R Co, to restrain the Pennsylvania Petroleum R R Co from crossing their track on grade, at a certain point near the Roberts' lumber yard, was not heard at Meadville, on Monday last, but postponed for ten days

THE motion for an injunction in favor of the Warren & Venango Railroad Company against the Titusville & Petroleum Centre Railroad Company to restrain the latter from occupying their line will be argued at Franklin on Friday next

WANTED OIL WELL.—To purchase an oil well doing from seven to ten barrels, or two wells doing together the same amount. Easy payments desired, with a small amount down Address, E H P, Herald Office

THE city is full of strangers—principally in attendance on the Refiners' Convention

THE call for a public meeting to be held this evening will be found in another column

MORTAR FOR BRICK WORK

MORTAR FOR STONE WORK,

MORTAR FOR PLASTERING

FURNISHED BY

CHAS. CARSON,

And manufactured at his Mortar Mill, corner of Washington St and Oil Creek R R

The ingredients for the mortar are proportioned by invariable rule. They are of the best quality and mixed thoroughly—far better than can be done by hand in the old fashioned and expensive way. It can be supplied in

Large Quantities on Short Notice

For the last two years I have furnished this Mortar for various large buildings, among them the Farrell Block. Read the following remarks

ABOUT LIME, SAND, AND PROPORTIONS FOR MORTARS

Most men know that the lime and sand are the universal ingredients in mortar, but there are several varieties and qualities of each, and that when they are properly selected, proportioned and commingled they will form a cement and endure for ages. On the other hand, we know that the greater proportion of mortars are now made and used, soon crumble and waste away, and this exists to the fact, that poor mortars are, in the end very expensive.

One thing is certain, we either do, or do not know how to make them. If we do know how they should be made, to last a den ure, then "let it be put in every one rest that it shall be done." If we do not know, let us own the truth, and try and learn.

I believe that when good mortars are made, that it is more the result of happen-to-hit than of knowledge, and that some method or rule of proportioning the ingredients is required.

To make the best mortar that can be made from the material to be used, we should know how to proportion and commingle them.

To make it very best we must know how to select as well as to proportion and commingle them.

It is of no use to properly proport on mortar, if it is not properly prepared and thoroughly commingled. Mine cannot be relied upon to do it, nothing but a machine will work mortar as it ought to be.

I am prepared to sell County Rights for using Mortar Machines, for nearly all of Pennsylvania.

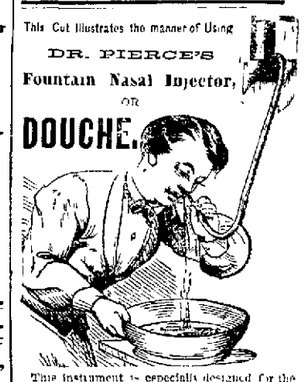
This Cut illustrates the manner of Using

DR. PIERCE'S Fountain Nasal Injector, OR DOUCHE.



This instrument is especially designed for the perfect application of

It is the only form of instrument with which fluid medicine can be carried thoroughly and perfectly applied to all parts of the nasal passages and the cavities communicating therewith in which secretion and the frequently exist, and from which it should be discharged, to effect a cure. Its use in treating Catarrh heretofore has been hindered from the impossibility of applying it in the ways existing and chambers by means of the ordinary methods. This objection, in the way of effective cleanliness, is entirely overcome by the use of the Douche. During the stream of the Fluid is carried by its own weight, no snuffing, forcing or pumping being required. The nozzle is so gently flowing stream to the highest part of the nasal passages, passes into and through the Catarrhal tubes and chambers connected therewith, and flows out of the opposite nostril. Disease is cleansed and no sample that a child can understand. Full and explicit directions accompany each instrument. When used with the instrument Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cures the most aggravated cases of "Cold in the Head" in a few applications.

Symptoms of Catarrh. Frequent headache, discharge falling into the throat, sometimes a fluid, watery, thick mucus, in others a thick and tenacious mucus adhering to the membrane, obstruction of the nasal passages, dullness, loss of smell, taste, hearing, and a cough, with general debility. Sold by druggists for $500 Rewarded for a case it can not cure. The Remedy is applied, not to the throat, but to the nasal passages of persons. The Catarrh Remedy sold by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of 50 cents. Douche sent free by druggists, or sent by mail on receipt of 50 cents. R. V. PIERCE, M.
